

Potley Hill Primary School Instrumental Teaching policy

Background

Potley Hill Primary School offers a wide range of instrumental lessons. Peripatetic instrumental teachers make an important contribution to supporting music at the school. It is the aim of the school to offer the opportunity to learn a musical instrument to all interested children. This policy explains the school provision of instrumental tuition for children.

General policy

Instrumental lessons are available in guitar, piano/keyboard, ukulele and drumming from private teachers which parents pay directly for, though at a reduced cost. All lessons are for 30 minutes on a one-to-one basis. Tuition in other instruments may also be provided on request and where a teacher is able to be sourced. For all instrument lessons, with the exception of piano/keyboard, children provide their own instruments.

Most lessons take place in the music room on a rota basis, timetabled for weekly tuition.

Children receiving instrumental tuition are expected to participate in performances to the rest of the school and parents, at least once per year.

Opportunities for other performances, such as County Music Festivals, will also be explored by the school on an annual basis.

Students may be entered for Associated Board Exams (or equivalent) and the school will acknowledge their successes. The charge for examination entrance may vary (fees are published on the examination board websites) and the cost of the entrance fee is to be paid directly by the parent.

Peripatetic teachers regularly liaise with parents as to the progress made in these lessons and a communication book is often used. Parents are able to contact these private teachers directly through agreed communication channels.

Instrument Tuition Charges

Progress on an instrument can only be made through regular attendance of lessons and frequent practice. All instrumental staff will keep an attendance register and students will be questioned on unexplained absence.

Payment for lessons is organised directly with each peripatetic teacher. The school does not involve itself in any payments or non-payments. These should be arranged between the teacher and the parents. It is the responsibility of private teachers to carry out any debt collection or book-keeping.

Charging and terms and conditions for all instrumental lessons are organised directly by the company or the individual teacher of that instrument and do not involve the school.

Entitlement to Peripatetic Instrumental Tuition

The school is aware of and keenly supports the principle of equality of opportunity. Therefore, no child is denied the chance of learning a musical instrument. However, the process of providing any child with instrumental lessons is dependent of the following:

- That in the opinion of the instrumental teacher concerned, they satisfy the physical criteria (reach, dental development etc) and that they show aptitude for the chosen instrument.
- They have previously shown an interest in music

- They and their families are willing to take full advantage of the opportunity by undertaking a serious and genuine commitment to regular lesson attendance and to regular practice at home in accordance with the content and time recommended by the teacher
- They undertake to pay the agreed charges

Children who are already learning an instrument will be given priority over any children transferring to the school.

Regular articles in newsletters will remind parents of the opportunity to book instrumental lessons for their child/children.

Children who express a genuine interest in learning are given lessons subject to the following:

- Parental/Guardian letter of consent is received.
- Lessons are subject to availability of teacher and instrument. Children may be added to a waiting list.

Details of hours taught by peripatetic teachers, numbers of children learning and lesson duration are flexible. Up to date information is always available from the School Office.

Date Reviewed: January 2022

Next Review: January 2025